Day 1, Sunday, May 5 – Our mid-morning, non-stop flight to Phoenix arrives before lunch and we will meet our Tour Director, Clay, upon landing. After a lunch stop, we are off to see the Montezuma Castle National Monument. The Sinagua people, a pre-Columbian culture closely related to the Hohokam and other indigenous peoples of the southwestern U.S., were the original inhabitants. The main structure comprises five stories and about 20 rooms and was built over the course of three centuries. For the next four nights, we will call Little America, in Flagstaff, our base and home. Day 2, Monday, May 6 — Grab your camera for today's adventures – we are heading to Sedona for a Pink Jeep Tour! The sandstone is known as “Sedona Red” and has attracted people as a place of intrigue and mystique for centuries. During our visit we will stop at the Chapel of the Holy Cross, voted by Arizonans to be one of the Seven Man-Made Wonders of Arizona. After lunch, we head to Jerome, a “ghost town” rejuvenated with art galleries and historic buildings. Our last stop is Tuzigoot National Monument, whose name is derived from the Tonto Apache meaning “crooked waters”. The monument was built by the Sinagua people between 1125 and 1400 CE. (B)

Day 3, Tuesday, May 7 — Today we head southeast to visit the Painted Desert and the Petrified National Forest. Another day for fabulous photos! The Painted Desert is known for its brilliant and varied colors including shades of lavender. The Petrified Forest was formed when an ancient forest was buried by layers of sediment and volcanic ash, and the organic matter in the trees was replaced by minerals such as silica, iron, and manganese. In Winslow, we dine at the historic La Posada's Turquoise Room. The hotel is best known as Fred Harvey's Last Great Railroad Hotel! A last stop at the Meteor Crater, a National Natural Landmark formed about 50,000 years ago. (B, L)

Day 4, Wednesday, May 8 — The Grand Canyon! There are no words to describe the sights today and amazing facts you will learn about the geology, biology, ecology, and history of the canyon. Tonight culminates the day with a wonderful Farewell Dinner. (B, D)

Day 5, Thursday, May 9 — Heading back to Phoenix today, we explore one of the largest museums of its type in the world – The Musical Instrument Museum (MIM). The museum's collections houses over 15,000 musical instruments and associated objects which include examples from nearly 200 countries. Arizona is best known for being a desert, so our last stop is the Desert Botanical Garden. There are more than 50,000 plants of which 379 are rare, threatened, or endangered. After a full day, we will arrive the Drury Inn & Suites just in time for their Kickback™. (B, Kickback™)

Day 6, Friday, May 10 – An early flight departure gets us home in the early afternoon.
